

Some signs of Financial Abuse

Working for a family business and not receiving payment

Being forced to take out debt in your name

Your partner making it difficult for you to get a job or earn money

Someone else deciding how the household income is spent

Using your money to pay for all household expenses and not receiving discretionary income for yourself

Your partner monitoring your spending and/or asking for receipts

Not being allowed to manage any household financial tasks ie) paying a bill

Your partner neglecting to pay child support or child care

Your partner gambling away your shared money

Being denied access to your bank account

Sometimes it can be difficult to identify Financial Abuse. If you need support rebuilding after Financial Abuse, contact the Financial Independence Hub.

Call 1300 050 150 for a free and confidential conversation.